The Rowpro System: A Technical Overview .Now, we have received several calls from you over the last few months reporting similar problems (some of which are outlined below). We have investigated and found that the Enron business units do not appear to be taking advantage of the improved functionality in the new release. In fact, some of the problems reported below are now present in CRM 3.0.0.12. Examples of problems reported include: 1. Customers having on-going deals that do not have a status or contact activity that they can see (either in their Calendar, Greeting, Sales or Contacts modules). 2. Customers with active campaigns that do not show any activity. 3. Customers with tasks/activities associated with their contacts/case/deals/calendars that are not showing in their activity view. 4. Customers having tasks/activities associated with their deals that are not showing in their Activity view. 5. Customers not being able to log into the system due to a service specific error In addition to these instances, some examples of possible problems that you may be having include the following: 1. Search results being populated incorrectly by multiple hits for the same deal. 2. Not being able to delete a contact from the Outlook Contacts module. 3. Not being able to delete a contact from the Outlook Contacts module, even after having deleted the contact from the browser. 4. New contacts from the Exchange ActiveSync imports not showing in the Outlook Contacts module. In the best interest of our customers, we have decided to roll back the CRM 3.0.0.12 to the last service pack release (which fixed the problems you have mentioned above). We also rolled back the Outlook plugin for MSN Messenger and the MSN Messaging and Multimedia plug-in. You can do this yourself, or you can have an IT professional do it for you. On top of what you already
